David Scott-Coombes FRCS, MS, FEBS is the Senior consultant endocrine surgeon in Cardiff, Wales, UK. He has developed a regional endocrine surgical service whereby five surgeons provide endocrine surgery services across the whole of South Wales with centralisation of complex cases to Swansea and Cardiff. He qualified in medicine at Westminster medical School, London in 1985. His training in endocrine surgery was undertaken at Hammersmith Hospital in London, under the tutorship of John Lynn. In 1996 he was appointed as Consultant Surgeon at King's College Hospital, London and then in 2002 he moved to the University Hospital of Wales following the retirement of Malcolm Wheeler.

He is past-President of the British Association of Endocrine Surgeons (2013-2015), European Society of Endocrine Surgeons (2017-2022) and the Eurocrine Society (2022-2024). He is passionate about surgical outcomes and was a major contributor to the design of both the British and pan-European surgical Registries (UKRETS and Eurocrine). He has published 80 papers and written chapters in many leading surgical textbooks. In 2023 he was awarded a Hunterian Professorship by the Royal College of Surgeons of England on the subject of parathyroidectomy and the impact of localisation and ioPTH.
